

AND THE HOMEAID PROJECT PLAYHOUSE WINNER IS.....

Dawna and Don Branum and their sons, Tyler, 13, and Ryan, 12, were thrilled to have their winning raffle ticket drawn by Astros owner, Drayton McLane at the Astros game on Thursday, August 19th. They are the winners of the 2010 HomeAid Project Playhouse, called "The Vintage Astros Dugout", to honor the Astros 45th year as a ball club. Project Playhouse is a major fundraising event for HomeAid Houston, a GHBA sponsored charity. The playhouse was built by David Weekley Homes and GHBA members donated labor, materials and services for the fundraiser. The key to the playhouse will be presented to the Branum's at the Astros game on Tuesday, August 31st.

Staff members from David Weekley Homes and Camden Builders employees were the winning team for ticket sales. HomeAid would like to thank all of the volunteers who helped at the games this year. We couldn't have the playhouse fundraiser without the support of the volunteers.

HomeAid had a second playhouse this year, also built by David Weekley Homes that was also constructed with donated labor, materials and services from GHBA members. It was auctioned off at the Astros Wives Gala on August 12th. The winning bidder was Drayton and Elizabeth McLane, owners of the Astros. The McLane's bid $13,000 for the playhouse which will be installed at their home for their grandchildren.

HomeAid would like to extend a huge thank you to all of our sponsors:
